

Sherry Blanchard Stuart (1941-)

A resident of the Sonoran desert of north Scottsdale, Arizona, Sherry Blanchard Stuart is a traditional painter of landscapes, figures, equine subjects and still life. She earned a BFA from the Minneapolis College of Art and Design.

Stuart paints mountains and desert landscapes as well as wildlife, cowboys and ranch scenes. She particularly enjoys painting horses and finds grooming and riding her own horse helps her to capture the animal's beauty.

She finds that being an artist in Arizona is appealing because of "the light, the openness, the vast distances you can see, the mountains, and the atmosphere of the desert. Also it is good to have nice weather so much of the year so you can go out and paint."

Her work is in the Tucson Museum of Art and the Desert Caballeros Museum in Wickenburg, Arizona.

PERIODICALS

Cowboys and Indians Magazine, feature article Spring 1996

Western Horseman Magazine, April 1996

The Illustrator, Periodical, feature article, Vol 18, No 1, 1996

Art Trends Magazine, Fall 1996

Art of the West Magazine, feature page July/August 1994

Equine Images Magazine, feature article Winter 1998

Midwest Art Magazine, feature article May/June 1985

Source: Southwest Art, September 2002